As part of Long Time, No See?, you are invited to contribute your path to the future. From 14 June you will be able to access the documentation and apps that enable you to participate and create content.

On 14 June, as part of ISEA 2013's Electric Nights event to be held in Parramatta, the Long Time, No See? project will be unveiling the realised artwork in conjunction with ICE.

Participation is easy and designed to be DIY. Just follow these steps:

Register on the Long Time, No See? website.
www.long-time-no-see.org

From this website, also download the Setting Your Compass booklet and the Fieldbook. Download the app for your iPhone OR access the web interface for other smartphones (www.long-time-no-see.com/walk). Bookmark this for future use or create a shortcut.

Spend some time reading and writing in the Setting Your Compass booklet. This is intended to provoke some reflection about futuring and care. It provides you with an opportunity to position yourself in relation to some important questions. You could do this with someone else and have a conversation about the questions.

Read the Fieldbook, taking specific note of the preparatory and safety instructions.

With mobile device and Fieldbook at the ready, follow the prompts and mark your walk.

Join the Long Time, No See? Facebook group and share your experiences.

Remember—you are encouraged make more than one contribution.
